

CUSTOMERPULSE AI

SUBSCRIPTION POLICY

Version 1.0

1. PURPOSE

This document describes subscription plans, billing considerations, payment issues, renewals, and general subscription management guidelines.

2. SUBSCRIPTION TYPES

The platform provides three primary subscription levels.

BASIC

The Basic plan is designed for customers who require essential platform capabilities.

Typical characteristics:

- Core product functionality.
- Basic usage limits.
- Standard customer support.
- Suitable for individual or small-scale users.

STANDARD

The Standard plan provides additional functionality and increased usage capabilities.

Typical characteristics:

- Core functionality.

- Additional product features.
- Higher usage limits.
- Standard support.
- Suitable for growing teams.

PREMIUM

The Premium plan provides the highest level of functionality.

Typical characteristics:

- Advanced product capabilities.
- Higher usage limits.
- Priority support.
- Advanced features.
- Suitable for organizations with larger requirements.

3. CONTRACT TYPES

Customers may have different contract durations:

- Monthly.
- Yearly.
- Two Year.

Monthly customers may have higher churn risk because they have a shorter commitment period.

4. RENEWAL

Customers approaching renewal should be monitored for:

- Declining usage.
- Support problems.
- Payment failures.
- Reduced engagement.
- Changes in business requirements.

5. PAYMENT FAILURES

Payment failures should be investigated promptly.

Possible causes include:

- Expired payment method.
- Incorrect payment information.
- Bank rejection.
- Insufficient funds.
- Payment service interruption.

6. PAYMENT ASSISTANCE

When a customer experiences a payment failure:

1. Identify the failed transaction.
2. Inform the customer.
3. Provide instructions for updating payment information.
4. Allow the customer to retry payment.
5. Monitor whether the payment succeeds.

7. REPEATED PAYMENT FAILURES

Repeated payment failures may increase churn risk.

Customers with multiple payment failures should be prioritized for payment assistance.

The customer should be informed about available payment options without making unsupported assumptions about the reason for the failure.

8. PLAN CHANGES

Customers may consider changing their subscription when:

- Current plan does not meet their requirements.
- Usage is lower than expected.
- Usage has increased substantially.
- Required features are unavailable in their current plan.

9. PLAN RECOMMENDATIONS

Plan recommendations should be based on actual customer requirements and product usage.

A customer should not automatically be moved to a higher plan solely because of high churn probability.

10. RETENTION OFFERS

Retention offers should be provided only when allowed by the company's retention guidelines.

Potential retention actions include:

- Product education.
- Feature recommendations.
- Plan adjustment.
- Customer support assistance.
- Appropriate promotional offers.

11. RENEWAL RISK

Customers approaching renewal with high churn probability should be reviewed.

Example:

Customer ID: 10245

Contract: Monthly

Churn probability: 87%

Recommended action:

Review recent customer activity, support history, payment status, and product usage before contacting the customer.

12. SUBSCRIPTION SUCCESS METRICS

Subscription performance can be monitored using:

- Renewal rate.
- Cancellation rate.
- Upgrade rate.
- Downgrade rate.
- Payment failure rate.
- Churn rate.
- Revenue retention.